

Zero Hour For Invasion Of Europe Believed Near

By JUDSON O'QUINN

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(P)—With American and British troops girding swiftly for an invasion of western Europe, the impression prevailed in London today that the hour for the second front promised by Marshal Joseph Stalin had been advanced materially as a result of the close military cooperation envisaged at the Moscow conference.

Should the blow from the west fall in the immediate future, German forces reeling under the mighty Soviet offensive would find themselves confronted with another grand assault while still fully engaged in the attempt to stem the onrushing Red army.

Considering the Russians' past winter successes, their drive may not pause until spring. Since the spring pause in Russia for the past two years has been a long one—beginning about April and ending in June—a British American attack during that period would lack the advantage of simultaneous pressure from the east.

Consequently, the most favorable time for an invasion would seem to be before the spring lull, or after—and scarcely anyone here believes it will be that late.

Nazi news broadcasts have suggested an early Allied hop across the Channel into France from southern England, where the Germans said an invasion fleet and troops were being assembled. Stalin's promise that the second front is near could mean Berlin is right and an invasion is imminent.

VICTORY THROUGH AIR POWER TRIED FIRST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(P)—The victory-through-air-power theory is getting an acid test against Germany with a definite deadline—a time limit after which, if the effort fails, a ground invasion of western Europe will go forward.

The actual timetable is, of course, a military secret. But the deadline is the invasion date which was communicated to the Russians. General H. H. Arnold, commander of U. S. air forces, and Britain's air marshal, Sir Arthur T. Harris, have until that time to try to force German's surrender by use of air power alone.

Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of U. S. Army air forces in Britain, has told the British people the 8th Air Force now is able to throw as many as 1,000 planes into the air in a single day's operations.

On the same program, Marshal Harris promised to shatter 90 Nazi war centers.

REDS BEATING NAZIS TOWARD BORDERS

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

The snatches of conversation one picks up in walking along the streets are interesting if not always enlightening.

Here's a sample of what I overheard in walking along the street Saturday afternoon, but of course I could not linger to hear the conclusion of any of the conversation:

"I just got through baking three pumpkin pies—". "Don't do that, and I don't want to tell you again!" "She said Bill was drinking too much—". "I never did like that kind of soap anyway, it seems—". "You can always depend on him to do the wrong thing just about—". "I seen him in the Post Office not over 15 minutes ago, and he was—". "My soul! Look at that hot! Now if that—"

"Don't you think a lot of 'em could save their tires if they—". "It's the nicest coat I ever had and it only cost—". "I got a letter from him yesterday, and he's in Italy—". "I don't believe a word of it, for you never can depend upon—". "Hello, honey! How's the baby?" "Listen, kid, you can't do that!" "No, I ain't seen her, but you might try down at—". "A gossip man is worse than the—"

"My foot is hurting me so bad I'm sick all over—". "They say that she has been running around with half the men—". "Let me carry those parcels, honey—they're too much—". "Boy, O boy, was he good looking! I'll tell the cock-eyed world he—". "Let's go in and get a coke or a soda. I think it will pep us—". "I always keep mine in the kitchen cabinet and—". "Is the creek up any out—". "I see you can still smile!" "Her skirt isn't any longer than—". "Look at the hair on that girl's legs—". "—and I don't give a hoot what he says—". "The goods I bought wasn't the kind I used to get—". "Where have you been all afternoon? Next time I leave you—"

"He wanted me to get in the car, but darned if I'd get near that guy in the dark, for I know—"

"Don't stay in that dump too long; remember what happened last Saturday when you—".

"Yep! It's interesting to hear what the natives are talking about."

This incident took place in a nearby town.

A young mother, whose husband works at one of the Dayton air fields was teaching her three small children to say the Lord's Prayer. After two or three lessons, Frankie, her son who is five years old, could say it perfectly. Emilie, the baby, two years old, couldn't pronounce all the words, but she got the general idea.

Suzanna, three years old and very independent, was confident that she, too, could say the Lord's Prayer. When her turn came, she clasped her hands, closed her eyes tight and began: "Our Father, which art in Dayton..."

COST OF LIVING IS THREATENED ON TWO SIDES

Wage Ceilings Attacked by Labor as Steelworkers Add Demands for Pay Boost

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(P)—Labor assaults on wage ceilings widened today as a presidential committee charged with reporting on the nation between living costs and worker incomes set out to try to beat a 60-day limit for its study.

With the miners' wage dispute reduced to secondary issues the main attack on the wage front came from the CIO, the AFL, Railroad Unions, and the Independent Railroad Brotherhoods. All the rail unions are taking strike votes which are expected to authorize a tieup of the nation's railroads whenever the union chiefs elect to call a walkout. While most government officials are confident a strike will not materialize, there is no clear indication what shape a peaceful settlement might take.

Steelworkers Want Raise

While chiefs of the 15 non-operating rail unions were rejecting proposals of a special presidential board and turning to Congress for help, President Philip Murray of the United Steelworkers of America announced his union would lead the CIO campaign for wage hikes.

The novelty of what one member described as a "reverse filibuster" confronts the House today as official Washington ponders such diverse problems as war relief abroad and wage-living cost ratios at home.

The White House opens its doors at noon to representatives of 43 countries, come to sign the United Nations relief and rehabilitation agreement—a pact to pool resources for the feeding, clothing and reviving of war-stricken countries.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of a Senate Postwar Committee, urges an early congressional statement of policy covering the shift from wartime to peacetime in industry "so there will not be bungling and delays." He said the committee is seeking a basic formula for legislation that not only will provide for orderly conversion, but will serve as a guide for the disposal of surplus war materials.

JAP DESTROYER SUNK BY U. S. SKY DRAGONS

CHUNGKING, Nov. 9.—(P)—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Sky Dragons, supporting Chinese troops on the Burma front, sank a Japanese destroyer and four other vessels in the former treaty port of Amoy on Sunday and blasted the Japanese airdrome at Kiungshan on Hainan Island yesterday, to destroy four parked planes and damaged many others, U. S. communiques announced today.

The raid on Kiungshan Airdrome evidently caught the Japanese napping, as no opposition was reported. Direct hits were scored on two hangars and bombs were dropped on an enemy freighter spotted by the Mitchells on their homeward flight.

Sunday's raid on Amoy Harbor was staged at low level through heavy anti-aircraft and machine-gun fire.

German Island Base Off Greenland Wrecked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—AP—Destruction of a German radio and weather base on an island off the coast of Greenland was reported by Secretary of the Navy Knox today.

The small but well constructed base, Knox said, indicated a plan to maintain it permanently. It included a radio station, power house, emergency generator and radio transmitter, defensive machine gun emplacements and food supplies. A small ship anchored in the harbor had telephone communications with all principal shore points.

The German base, the second destroyed by American forces in the Greenland area, was discovered by a United States army sledge patrol.

The patrol was attacked by the Germans but managed to report its discovery, although two of its members were captured and a third, Eli Knudsen, was killed.

The Germans subsequently sent a force against a small hunting and weather station well above the Arctic Circle manned only by a handful of Danes armed with hunting rifles and pistols. The Germans attacked with machine guns in the darkness but most of the Danes escaped.

Army air force planes and the Coast Guard cutters Northland and North Star joined in wiping out the enemy base on the unidentified island. The action started last May with Army air force planes bombing and strafing the enemy base.

OHIO POOR RELIEF COST AT NEW LOW

COLUMBUS, Nov. 9.—(P)—Poor relief dropped to its lowest recorded level in Ohio last month, largely as a result of wartime employment, Welfare Director Herbert R. Mooney reported today.

He said preliminary surveys showed only 12,900 cases aided in October, less than half the 26,030 for the same month last year and 42,020 in October, 1941. The peak poor relief case load was 122,186 at a cost of $2,500,000 in February, 1940.

Mooney estimated costs for the first 10 months of this year at $5,725,118, a 44.3 percent decrease from the $10,274,384 for the comparable 1942 period and a 90 percent drop under the record high of five years ago.

YANK LANDING FORCE FIGHTS JAP BOMBERS

ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC ALLIED BASE, Nov. 9.—(P)—Three small American vessels—a PT boat and two landing craft—blazed defiance at twelve Japanese torpedo bombers that attacked them and shot down possibly six. One plane was shot down by Gunners Mate, Second Class, Richard Dziulak of Lorain, Ohio, who opened fire within five seconds after general quarters had been ordered.

In the battle fought in the Solomons 30 miles south of Bougainville Island last Friday, the Japanese let loose seven torpedoes, hitting the PT boat and an LCI (landing craft, infantry).

Forty-eight men were transferred to the crippled PT and returned to Bougainville while the third vessel, and LCT (landing craft, tanks) towed in the LCI. One American was killed, another wounded.

Impending Ruin of Germany Predicted When British and Americans Invade Europe—Pledge That Britain Will Continue Fight Against Japs Is Renewed

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(P)—Prime Minister Churchill gravely proclaimed the "impending ruin" of Germany today, but with all the force of his leadership and language warned that in his belief the Nazi's defeat could not come before 1944.

He asserted solemnly that the campaigns of next year might surpass the tragedies of Waterloo and Gettysburg, that "unless some happy event occurs, on which we have no right to count, 1944 will see the greatest sacrifice of the British and United States armies."

The valiant and brilliant Russian offensives have wrecked the German war machine and inflicted wounds "that may well prove fatal," he declared.

The British war premier asserted that the back of the Nazi submarine warfare has been broken, and that the devastating air war upon the Reich has "been one of the prime forces in the impending ruin of the Hitler regime."

In an address broadcast to the world, Churchill said, "I am myself proceeding on the assumption that the campaign of 1944 in Europe will be the most severe and most costly to the Allies yet fought."

Hitler still has 400 divisions, promises a desperate struggle, and "we cannot exclude the possibility of new forms of attack upon this island," Churchill warned in his address at the inaugural luncheon of a new Lord Mayor of London.

"This year 1944 is also election year in the United States," Churchill said, "I am sure I speak for all those of both sides of the Atlantic when I say that I hope we can preserve that goodwill throughout the English speaking world and aid our armies."

Churchill declared "we have all been cheered by the results of the Moscow conference." He termed

TURIN PARALYZED BY BOMB ASSAULT

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 9.—(P)—Turin, northern Italian city of 600,000, was virtually paralyzed by yesterday's Allied attack by Mediterranean-based bombers, it was established here today.

(Flying Fortresses of the 15th U. S. Airforce struck the city. Allied headquarters in Algiers said photographs showed every building of the Fiat bearing plant was demolished or damaged to such an extent the factory could not operate. The plant was regarded as the third most important bearing producer in German-occupied Europe.)

Dispatches to the Geneva newspaper La Suisse said the attack smashed all Turin's street car services, deprived the city of gas and electricity, and cut off the water supply in many quarters.

NEW OHIO FACTORY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(P)—The Defense Plant Corp. reported a $470,000 increase in its contract with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron to finance additional facilities at an undesignated Ohio plant.

ARSENAL IN JERSEY ROCKED BY BLAST

METUCHEN, N. J., Nov. 9.—(P)—Explosions heard near here today were reported to come from the Raritan arsenal, but the public relations office there declined immediate comment.

The reports were heard over a radius of several miles.

Raritan arsenal is an army manufacturing and shell-loading plant.

The public relations office of the second service command said French ammunition, brought to this county from overseas and stored in one magazine at Raritan, had exploded. Damage was unofficially estimated at $50,000 and included the magazine.

Record Run Of Hogs Is In Prospect As Packers Bemoan Labor Shortage

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(P)—A record influx of hogs into the nation's stock yards during the next two or three months was foreseen by livestock experts today and Chicago meat packers were confronted with a new problem—finding sufficient manpower to handle the big runs.

With a good statistical knowledge of what is coming, packing officials are seeking to build up their labor forces to meet what gives every indication of being the severest crisis yet produced by the manpower shortage.

There were 74,000,000 little pigs born on American farms last spring—a record. Fattened throughout the summer months until they are carrying around 200 to 240 pounds of pork and lard, these pigs have started to come to market. They will keep coming in increasing numbers during November and December.

Already pens are jammed with puffing porkers. Meat processors are buying hogs in the country and then shipping them to Chicago because the smaller slaughtering points do not have room to keep them overnight. The run of previously purchased hogs at Chicago yesterday was the year's largest.

Normally, at this time of year, Chicago packers can dip into their manpower reservoir of part-time employees. But the part-time reservoir is no longer there, because full time employment has been available elsewhere.

25 JAP WARSHIPS AT RABAU BLASTED LIKE FISH IN BARREL

ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 9.—AP—Aerial photographs today showed a fleet of 25 Japanese warships penned in Rabaul Harbor frantically trying to escape from dive bombers and torpedo bombers in the first attack on that fortress by aircraft launched from American aircraft carriers.

The pictures show eight heavy cruisers, three light cruisers and 14 destroyers fleeing in crazy circles from the daylight attack last Friday.

One cruiser blew up, seven other cruisers and two destroyers were hit, and twenty Zeros shot down. Seven of our dive bombers were brought down by interceptors and anti-aircraft fire.

DeGaulle Maneuvering For Control Of France

ALGIERS, Nov. 9.—(P)—A De Gaulle showdown fight for complete control of the French provisional government appeared likely today as the National Liberation Committee's Consultative Assembly, augmented by last week's arrivals from France, resumes its first session after a recess of several days.

Supporters of Gen. Charles De Gaulle are expected to launch a determined effort to cleanse the National Committee elements they regard as "lukewarm" and replace them with others actively enthusiastic for the De Gaulle party line, thus insuring their ascendancy in the future government.

On the list to go is Gen. Giraud himself, who commands the French land, sea and air forces as well as sharing the presidency.

The De Gaulleists regard the housecleaning as necessary to obtain a more whole-hearted leadership for France's war against the Axis.

Giraud's position will be assailed indirectly, it is said, possibly with a request that he resign as committee co-president and retain only his military command in line with De Gaulle's oft-expressed policy of separating civil and military functions.

The result would be to leave De Gaulle as sole president of a committee united behind him as "party" leader.

MOTHER ABANDONS HER FOUR CHILDREN

TOLEDO, Nov. 9.—(P)—Police and juvenile authorities are seeking a Toledo mother who yesterday abandoned her four-month-old son and her three other small children in a waiting room of the juvenile court office in Lucas County Court House here.

The woman, about 40, made application to have the baby and children admitted to the Lucas County Children's Home. She said she could care for them no longer and wanted them admitted at once.

She left the room while a clerk was preparing to investigate her case and was seen running from the building. The infant was taken to Lucas County Hospital and the children were committed temporarily to the county home.

SCHOOLING FOR VETERANS BEING PLANNED IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Nov. 9.—(P)—Heads of Ohio's six state universities and the State Department of Education will cooperate with the post-war planning commission to provide educational facilities for Ohio's war wounded and returning servicemen.

Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Commission chairman, said the educational representatives conferred with him yesterday and were ready to "go the full limit" in giving veterans a chance to complete their interrupted education.

Headquarters, listing losses of 63 Japanese planes within the past 48 hours, reported 35 wiped out Sunday at Rabaul by Liberators and Lightnings which bored through the fantastic bombs, 50 Zeros and a heavy curtain of anti-aircraft fire.

GERMAN FORCES BEING FORCED BACK IN ITALY

Yanks Continue To Blast Jap Ships and Planes At Base at Rabaul

By RICHARD McMURRAY
By The Associated Press

Russian troops launched a violent assault against the Crimea from the north today, the German radio at Paris said, as other Red Army groups beat swiftly toward Poland, Rumania and Latvia.

Panicked remnants of a dozen beaten German divisions were being herded west of ravaged Kiev on an 80-mile front, in which the Soviet forces were 115 miles from Poland and 140 miles from Rumania across the western Ukraine. Farther north in the Nevel sector, Russian troops were declared at the gates of Polotsk, 20 miles from Poland and within striking distance of Latvia. At the mouth of the Dnieper River, the Russians were but 60 miles across a Black Sea neck from Rumania.

"Dunkirk" For Nazis?

The Paris radio said the Red Army struck down through the Perekop Isthmus, the narrow land bridge from the Crimea to the mainland. A bridgehead had been established and widened at the eastern edge of the peninsula around Kerch and a pincer appeared to be clamping down on the trapped German 17th Army. Stockholm reported some Germans had been evacuated by sea and that hundreds of Black Sea coastal ships and Danube River boats were being assembled for a "Dunkirk."

At Kiev, 15,000 Germans died and 6,200 surrendered. Pravda said the enemy fled in panic, abandoning weapons, munitions and even clothes. The swift mobile Red columns were within 50 miles of Zhitomir. One dispatch said the Germans were evacuating civilians from the 110 miles between Lake Ilmen and the Estonian border, possibly precluding a forced withdrawal from the Leningrad front.

Drive in Italy Rolling

Sweeping five miles up the Italian Adriatic coast, the British 8th Army planted itself in position overlooking the Sangro River, 23 miles below the port of Pescara. On the Mediterranean, the Fifth Army made small gains toward Gaeta, 70 miles from Rome and 19 miles from the southern edge of the famous Pontine marshes.

German prisoners said Marshal Rommel planned a winter line on the Sangro and Garigliano rivers. The British took Torino near the Sangro's mouth, and Paglieta—both on high ground dominating the river. In the center, Fornelli fell, five miles west of Isernia. Pescocostanzo, eight miles northeast of Isernia and Torrebruna also were captured. The Allies bombed Durazzo Harbor in Albania.

New Type Jap Bomb

Phosphorus bombs, which look when they first burst like tenacled octopi, then shoot forth smoke and flame, have been added to Rabaul's defenses by the Japanese, desperate for ways to prevent that key base from being bombed out of the war. But the relentless Allied campaign moves ahead unchecked.

Headquarters, listing losses of 63 Japanese planes within the past 48 hours, reported 35 wiped out Sunday at Rabaul by Liberators and Lightnings which bored through the fantastic bombs, 50 Zeros and a heavy curtain of anti-aircraft fire.

New Tax Rate In Washington C. H. Will Be $16.40

LITTLE CHANGE MADE IN OTHER TAX DISTRICTS

Levy Voted in June Boosts Rate in This City $1 Per $1,000

The Fayette County budget commission has fixed the 1943 tax rate for Washington C. H. at $16.40 for each $1,000 worth of taxable property.

This is an increase of $1 over the present rate, due to the extra mill levy voted on June 8, for school purposes, when the voters approved a three mill levy to take the place of the two mill levy then in effect.

In Washington C. H., for each $1,000 in taxable property, the county will receive $3.25 for the general fund, 25 cents for the joint district tuberculosis hospital and .05 for poor relief bond retirement.

The city schools will receive $7.25 for current expenses and $2.15 for bond retirement. The city will receive $2.30 for the general fund, 15 cents for the police pension fund and $1 for the bond retirement fund, making a total of $3.45.

Rates in the various townships and villages of the county have been fixed as follows, with a notation of present rates:

Concord township, $10.25; present rate is $11.75. Greene township, $13.50; is $12.25. Jasper township, $12.10; is $10.25; Jefferson township, $12.60; is $12.75. Madison township, $12.50; is $12.25. Marion township, $12.25; is $10.25. Paint township, $10.20; is $10.25. Perry township, $10.20; is $10.25. Union township, $10.25; is same; Wayne township, $10.25; is same; Jeffersonville, $15.65; is $15.75. Milledgeville, $12.25; is $10.25. Octa, $12.25; is $10.25. Bloomingburg, $10.70; is same.

Due to the termination of a 1-1-2 mill levy in Concord township, the rate will be reduced in the above amount. Jasper and Marion townships both voted a two mill levy to be applied this year, thus raising their rates approximately that amount. Other districts are little changed from present rates.

County Auditor Ulric T. Acton submitted the above rates to the State Tax Commission last Friday, and they have been approved by Fred Becker, official in charge of county affairs.

ning of his address that in 1940 at the height of the blitz he pledged Great Britain never to give up the fight to liberate peoples from the Nazi yoke.

He recalled also he told a similar gathering that Britain would join the United States in war on Japan. "There is nothing wrong with that," he said amid cheers.

He said the aerial campaign against Germany might well be the precursor of victory in the European struggle.

"In all these struggles on land, sea and in the air Great Britain has had the honor to bear the largest share—and pay the largest price," the Prime Minister asserted.

His reference to the American troops' part in the Pacific campaign and General MacArthur's role brought a round of applause.

"But the outstanding triumph of this year has been the Russian advance, liberating so much of Russian soil from the foul invader," he said. This, too, brought a roll of applause.

"We and our American Allies have done our best to bring our forces across the seas and put them into action against the enemy."

"The air attacks on Germany have been one of the prime forces in the impending ruin of the Hitler regime."

Referring to his 1942 speech on the same occasion, Churchill said: "Last year, in 1942 I thought it right to say I did not consider it any part of my duty to liquidate the British Empire. I do not conceal from you now that I hold the same opinion today."

He said Hitler and his retinue were fighting for their very lives. "Victory will certainly be won, not only over Germany, but over Japan, with which the British Empire has an inexorable quarrel" which must be dissolved only by "unconditional surrender," the Prime Minister added and emphasized.

"We must make certain that chaos does not follow the victory."

BLOOD DONORS HERE MONDAY KEEP UNIT BUSY

164 Give Blood First Day With Nearly as Many More Scheduled for Second

After turning away blood donors yesterday, since the mobile unit was working at capacity, Red Cross headquarters at Grace Methodist Church Tuesday were calling those who were unable to give blood Monday to come back to the church basement.

Miss Mary D. Robinson, Red Cross executive here, said.

She explained that some of the people who were scheduled to give Tuesday were disqualified because of colds, so more donors were needed. Monday, 164 people gave pints of blood.

The mobile unit's stay Tuesday was from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M. and 136 people were expected to donate blood, Miss Robinson indicated. She said that people were waiting nearly all day Monday for a chance to give blood but that only a few of them could be accommodated.

Helping at the center Tuesday were Miss Elizabeth Rowland, Mrs. Ella Kinne, Mrs. Malcolm Dorn and Mrs. Faye Thompson, registered nurses, assisted by Mrs. Etta Ellis, Mrs. Herbert Evans and Miss Peggy Devins.

Mrs. Ralph Taylor and Mrs. Forest Ellis were in charge of the juice bar, which gives each donor a glass of orange juice before he gives his blood. Assisting Miss Clara Story in registrations was Mrs. Robert Wilson. Mrs. Harry Ferguson acted as receptionist.

Typists assisting the typist who came with the mobile unit were Mrs. Frank Baker, Mrs. Earl Gidding and Mrs. John F. Browning. Mrs. Bud Brownell was at the telephone.

The canteen, headed by Mrs. Jean Nisley, served a lunch of hot noodle soup, sandwiches, wafers, tea or coffee and pineapple and cottage cheese salad to each donor after their blood was given again Monday.

The schedule for the mobile unit is set up so that eight people may be served every 15 minutes.

Harold Layman and Miss Robinson provided transportation for donors after they had given their blood. Layman also assisted in putting the robes on men donors.

MANY ITALIAN SHIPS SEIZED BY ALLIES

527,000 Tons of Enemy Ships Sunk in Mediterranean

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Nov. 9—(AP)—At least 170,000 gross tons of Italian merchant shipping, as well as 149 Italian warships and many miscellaneous small craft, already have been brought under Allied control, a headquarters announcement said today.

In a statement issued on the anniversary of the Allied landings in North Africa, the Allied naval command disclosed also that a total of 527,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping had been sunk by Allied submarines and surface warships in the Mediterranean.

Of the total, 430,000 tons of enemy shipping, mostly carrying supplies, were sunk by submarines in the western Mediterranean and an additional 70,000 tons were damaged by the Allied subsurface.

Bitter Fighting On Attu Described By Washington C. H. Boy Back Home

Back from some of the bitterest fighting in the war, proudly but modestly wearing his campaign ribbon with two stars and his Purple Heart award on his breast, Sgt. Charles Counts told Mrs. Susan Fite's English classes something of the battle of Attu and life in the bleak Aleutian Islands where he had been for more than two years.

Sgt. Counts admitted he was as nervous in facing the students in the rooms where he had studied his English lessons under Mrs. Fite before his graduation from WHS in 1935 as he was when he went against the Japs in battle.

It was only through prompting by Mrs. Fite that Sgt. Counts told of his own part in the grim fighting as he unfolded the word picture.

He took part in two major battles—represented by the two stars on his campaign ribbon. The first was at Dutch Harbor and the second at Attu, where he was in the first wave of the attack.

After four days of fighting on Attu, he was hit in the hip by a piece of a Jap hand grenade. When asked what happened to the Jap who threw it, he ducked his head and grinned as he said: "I got him. I hope. I think."

Sgt. Counts, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Counts, 670 Rawlings Street, said he did not mind the winter weather there and added, "it only gets up to around 50 on good days and sometimes down to zero." He said "it's always raw, raining or snowing, and the wind is always blowing."

"I didn't see a tree for two years. About a year ago, we did transplant one tree—a Christmas tree—and that's the only one I know of in the Aleutians. We call it the National Forest of the Aleutians," Counts said.

Counts spoke of the landing on Attu. "It was just before dawn and we made a 'wet' landing." He explained that a "wet" landing is coming close to shore on barges and then jumping out into the surf. "Then you walk, swim or drown until you get to the beach," he chuckled. The beach at Attu was small, most of the coastline is rocky. Counts continued.

Cigarettes, $10 Carton
"This is the gospel truth, but you might not believe it—I didn't see a girl for two years. And I've paid as high as $10 a carton for cigarettes. I've seen whiskey sell for $100 a quart, too," Counts said.

He described conditions of one small island in the Adriatic group where he had lived for two months without taking off his clothes. "I didn't have any clothes to change into. We have rucksacks which hold 100 pounds of equipment, and when we left for that island, I filled mine with food. I'd rather wear the same clothes for two months than not eat," he explained. He told, too, of the muskag—swamp to Americans—which was his only bed during that time. "We'd spread canvas on the ground, put our sleeping bags on top of that and crawl in," he said that the sleeping bag he used was manufactured in Greenfield. "They make life jackets too—and if you ever have need of a life-jacket, use one made in Greenfield—they're good," Counts commented.

"Most of our plane losses up there were due to the weather. Sometimes it would be so foggy that fliers would have to use compass bearings to take off on the runways. I've seen it snow and rain within two minutes. And the first day I was on the Aleutians, it was sunny, raining and snowing inside of 15 minutes." Counts told too of the willawaws—storms which destroyed everything in their path in ten minutes. "I saw just about six really sunny days during those two years—and down here the same day wouldn't be called sunny at all."

Japs Lived Underground
Counts said that the Japanese lived in underground huts on Attu. "They were connected with tunnels—just honeycombed," he said. In describing the Jap weapons, he said the workmanship was inferior to that on American guns. "But we can't underestimate the Jap either in brains or in courage," Counts remembered "very little" hand-to-hand fighting with the Japs, but emphasized that they were not afraid to fight that way.

Made Spare Parts
He told of one time when the detachment was out of supplies for several months. "We had to make our spare parts—and something broke down nearly every day. We made everything from connecting rods to pistons and bearings. We had a lathe and a few other tools."

"We're way behind times up there. A paper that you read here today will reach us about two months later. And when our supply ships are lost, we just do without for a couple of months."

Counts said that about the only station they could get on their short-wave radios was Tokyo. "So we listened to Tokyo and liked it."

He said that he had met Byron McCoy and Phillip Bacon on the Aleutians. "And there are lots of Navy men there too," he added.

In The Air Corps Now
Besides his two years on the Aleutians, Count spent one year in Alaska proper. In 1939, he spent six months in Mexico City. He was not in the army at that time, however. He leaves Tuesday for Camp Haan, Calif., where he will be classified for aviation cadet training. "I sure do hope I make pilot," Counts said.

While in Alaska and the Aleutians, Counts was in the airborne engineers, who repaired runways and built hangars. He is now officially in the air corps, although he wears his engineers insignia.

When questioned as to whether or not battles and war had changed his mental outlook, Counts said: "It has changed, but in a way that you can't put into words. I don't feel any bitterness, but I hate. I could stick a knife into somebody now without any feeling at all." But, he implied, it doesn't show. And it doesn't.

War Takes 96¢ Of Each Dollar
Out of every $18.75 that is invested in a War Bond, $18 goes into guns, planes, tanks, ships and other military equipment. The 75 cents goes for ordinary governmental expenditures. Out of every dollar 96 cents goes toward the war effort and 4 cents goes for Government "business as usual."

The same ratio applies to all other securities the Government has offered investors in the Second War Loan campaign for 13 billion dollars.

A truce to war it signifies—
A truce, but not an end,
For war again has come to us,
Our peace we must defend;
Oh Lord, again extend Thy hand

And calm this sea of strife,
So nations all may live in peace
And not give life for life;
And -finis- write, this time
to war,
Turn' worldly hearts to Thee,
So that all peoples of the earth,
United then can be.

Hitler Like Rat in Corner As He Seeks To Shout Away Obvious Invasion Fears

Fuehrer Hitler in his rat-in-the-corner speech in the Munich beer cellar, yesterday challenged the Allies to open a second-front in Europe, which likely was an answer to Premier Stalin's promise last Saturday that the second-front "is not far off."

Since such invasion talk is in the air, and in fact has all Europe tingling with inquisition, this would seem to be a good time to answer a couple of questions that I've received from newspaper editors. They naturally reflect reader interest in this consuming subject. One editor wants to know why, if the Allied air forces are able to do such enormous damage to Hamburg and other German cities, those same bombers can't destroy the Hitlerite defenses over hundreds of square miles on the French coast and thus pave the way for the landing of a great army in the immediate future without undue loss.

Well, that certainly is a legitimate query and it puts a finger on the basic tactics upon which the Allies will depend when they get ready for the great adventure across the English Channel. The answer is that the Anglo-American air navies in Europe could do the job.

Having said this, however, it must be pointed out that up until recently neither the British nor the American fleets were strong enough for such an undertaking—or to do round-the-clock, big-scale bombing of German cities, for that matter. I'd hate to have to record here how pitifully small the combined Anglo-American fleet in England was a year ago. The admission of weakness can be made now that the crisis is passed. There have been other delaying factors. It has been essential to destroy Hitler's war industries as the sure and quick way of crippling his army, which is his most powerful weapon. This has called for the employment of all the bombing strength the Allies could muster.

Also, before staging a big-scale invasion of western France, it was essential that trans-Atlantic communications be secure so that there be no stoppage in the flow of the mountainous supplies and reinforcements needed. This meant that the U-boat menace must be got in hand, and that finally appears to have been achieved.

We now presumably have sufficiently large fleets of war-planes so that the Allied high command can order bombardment of the French coast when the moment is right. The fall weather is perhaps against invasion, but otherwise the time seems ideal, with the Germans racing against disaster in Russia.

Could the western Allies have staged invasion before this? Moscow has felt that they could and that they were unduly cautious, but that's a matter for the British and American high commands to decide. One thing is certain: We dare not undertake the landing of an army until we are absolutely sure of our beach-heads. Failure would be catastrophic. The French coast will have to be blasted to smithereens by bombers and naval guns before we can get ahead with this most titanic and dangerous operation of its kind in the history of war.

The other question submitted to this column asks why the Allies haven't invaded Yugoslavia before this. The answer involves several factors. For one thing the Russians haven't wanted an invasion of this territory, which they regard as their sphere of influence. The position may have changed in this respect, however, since the tripartite conference which developed such friendly cooperation among the Big Three.

Still, as my questioner points out, this isn't the whole story. Another and very important reason is that before invading Yugoslavia the Allies had to have control of southern Italy, with plenty of airfields from which to operate. And the fact is that the Anglo-American drive up the Italian peninsula hasn't gone as well as expected. The probabilities are, too, that the Allied command would want to be prepared to strike at other points in the Balkans simultaneously. This would involve ousting the Germans from the Aegean Islands. It might mean the granting of bases to the Allies by the Turks. There's considerable speculation whether the conference in Cairo between British Foreign Secretary Eden and Turkish Foreign Minister Menemencioğlu may have been concerned with some such move by Turkey.

RESISTS OFFICERS; FINED $35, COSTS

Pipeline Worker Has Sore Head as Result

George Frost, of Iowa, pipeline worker, was fined $35 and costs by Judge S. A. Murry, in police court, Tuesday morning, on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct filed against him by Captain Jess Ellis.

The police had two or three complaints against Frost in quick succession, and finally rounded him up at Stone's Grill, which he had just entered.

When Captain Ellis and Policeman Lewis Merritt got him as far as the Finley Drug Store corner, Frost started resisting, and fighting the officers. He tore Merritt's uniform, and when they could not handle him any other way, one of the officers used his mace. Then it was necessary to half drag and half carry the man to the city prison, and he caused so much disturbance there that he was placed in the iron cage in the jail, still wearing the handcuffs which had been snapped on his wrists.

Captain Ellis said he would hold Frost until he checked his classification in the selective service. Frost stated he was in class 4-F but did not have his classification card as required.

What About Inside Germany?

American newspapers within the past weeks have printed more stories of Nazi fear and dissension, purporting to have come from inside Germany. They should be taken with the usual dosage of salt, since they may be only the latest propaganda efforts to induce complacency and relax the Allied effort. Yet there is enough plausibility in each to warrant its being looked at, whether it is true or not.

One story is the latest in a series dealing with the Hitler-army feud. This series began long before the war. Its latest installment was the rumor, shortly after Mussolini's abdication, that Hitler had been overthrown and a military dictatorship established. Since then, however, the military picture has changed in two respects. Italy has made for herself as satisfactory an arrangement with the Allied powers as circumstances will permit, and the prospects of an eventual Nazi victory have become steadily less promising.

It is not impossible that, in the light of these developments, Field Marshal Keitel and other top German commanders might really believe that they could repeat the Italian procedure, seize Hitler, and open peace negotiations.

The other story is that Heinrich Himmler, the Gestapo chief, and high officials of the Elite Guard and Storm Troopers are already planning to take the Nazi organizations underground, when the political roof caves in, and continue their work. These are men who helped Hitler carry his party from a bunch of beer-hall crackpots in 1923 to the rulers of Germany 10 years later. And, according to the story, they are willing to devote another 10 or even 20 years to a new program of propaganda, sabotage, reorganization and rearmament. Their disappearance and the emergence of a military dictatorship might turn out to be the most expedient solution of their growing predicament.

Both these plans, if they are true, would hinge upon the hope that Premier Stalin's would be the commanding voice at the peace table, and that his wish for a "strong Germany" would prevail. They would also presuppose that the conditions of unconditional surrender that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have repeatedly demanded would be drowned out.

Perhaps both these stories are pipe dreams. But true or not, they serve to emphasize again one fact of undoubted truth and extreme importance: The war in Europe will not be won with the internal collapse of the German nation. It will not be won with the wholesale and still-distant defeat of the German army. The war will only be won, and the world will only be safe, when Hitler, Goering, Goebbels, Himmler and every other high Nazi leader are either in the custody of the United Nations or are dead. No public clamor for early peace or cessation of further hostilities should divert Allied

Bombed Engineers Have Ghostly Look

CAMP VAN DORN, Miss.—Men of the 263rd engineer combat battalion are learning to duck "baker" bombs as a part of their training.

Army planes harass them at their work by swooping down and trying to pot them with loosely-packed chalk. The engineers learn to disperse properly, seek cover and open fire on their aerial attackers. Victims of direct hits look somewhat ghostly and officers point out that this "is quite appropriate."

Bomb Might Work as an Escalator strategy from that goal, a goal on which America, Britain and Russia are agreed.

Is History Repeating?

What are the Germans up to in Rome? People would like to know. Hardly a trickle of news comes from that great city, which more than any other in the western world bridges the gap between ancient and modern civilization.

One thing fairly certain is that the Nazis are looting there, as they have done elsewhere in captured and enslaved cities. But are they making a thorough job of it, pillaging and confiscating everything that can be of material use to the German army, and destroying the rest, as they did in Naples?

What about the vast and irreplaceable art treasures of the Eternal City? It is a reasonable supposition that the masterpieces of the museums and the private collections of wealthy citizens are being shipped north, to fatten the steadily growing treasures of Berlin. But there are thousands of priceless things in Rome that cannot be so easily transferred. Are they being destroyed, as so many treasures have been in other places from sheer enmity or malignity?

The apparent attitude of present-day Germany is that, if the Germans can't take whatever they covet from their neighbors, it shall not be left for others to enjoy. Probably these modern vandals are having a greater orgy of destruction than their ancestors had when they sacked Rome in the year 455 A. D.

Weather and Our Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE FATHER of Medicine, Hippocrates, paid a good deal of attention to the influence of the weather on disease. One of his works is called Of Waters, Airs,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

And Places. He always insisted that his healing temples be placed in a salubrious climate between mountains, sea and river.

But when medicine got so scientific and germs were discovered as the definite cause of many diseases, the idea sort of got pushed into the background. There are only two men in the United States who write to any extent about the weather and human health—one is Dr. Clarence Mills, of Cincinnati, and the other, William F. Petersen, of Ann Arbor.

Dr. Petersen has just published a fascinating book about Lincoln, Douglas And the Weather As Destiny, seeking to show that the weather changes that occurred during their lives influenced their fortunes, their successes and their destinies. He has been to an enormous amount of trouble to dig out old weather reports.

Influence on Debates

During the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates in the summer of 1858 it can be noted that during the debates when Lincoln was most triumphant the weather was warm to hot—for instance, the Freeport Speech on August 27th.

Now according to Dr. Petersen's theory, the two types of human body, as represented by Lincoln and Douglas respectively, react differently to hot and cold weather. Lincoln was the long, thin type with most of his blood in his internal organs. When the weather got hot, the blood came out to the surface of his body and made him feel alive and well. Douglas, being of the broad type with his blood at the surface most of the time anyway, was made miserable by the surface congestion brought on by hot weather, couldn't think clearly or speak impressively under such circumstances and cut a poor figure beside the brilliant exposition of Lincoln.

Such are the consequences of Man as a Cosmic Resonator.

Other Incidents

Other incidents of Lincoln's career are adduced to show this influence. The "fatal first" of January, 1841, was the day on which he broke his engagement to Mary Todd. The weather was cold and damp and Lincoln's nature was not in the mood for love or marriage. When, then, was it likely that Mary Todd would be able to marry him? "In the good old summer time." Which is just what she did.

I do not know that I can subscribe to all of Dr. Petersen's theories in detail. They are interesting and unquestionably show that there are meteorological destinies that shape our ends, rough hew them as we will. But we can do something about it too. It would be hard to think we could never rise even above the weather.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. L.—Is there any possible way in which I can increase my height either by a certain diet or exercise? I am 21 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, all my brothers are 6 feet.

Answer: There is certainly no way to increase height after the age of 21, either by diet, exercise, or anything else. Sometimes in young children who do not grow fast enough the use of thyroid extract helps. However you have a good height. Everybody can't be 6 feet tall.

SYNOPSIS

Roommates and cousins, BETH KINNAN, serious-minded and trusting, and ANDREA BARNES, rather self-centered and selfish, find that the tense, unaccompanied America's impending entrance into the war is beginning to affect their lives. For three years Beth has been going with JIM RONALD, who still has not been too successful in getting ahead in the world, while Andrea has been attracted by DENNIS ARCHER, 15 years her senior, but wealthy and interesting—and also married.

YESTERDAY: Judge Mayfield, Beth's employer, dies, leaving her without a job.

CHAPTER TEN

HER BACK and her arms ached, but Beth felt her spirits lighter than they had been since November, and she sang as she slid the freshly laundered curtains over a rod and climbed up on the telephone table to hang them. Then she got down again, rubbing her back, and stood off to observe the effect of the curtains.

They hung in points here and there, but at least they were clean and fresh, like the skirts of the dressing table which she'd washed the day before.

She dropped on the bed and cast a housewifely eye over as much of the apartment as she could see. Everything was spotless. The floors had a fluffed, clean look, as well they might. For one whole week, Beth Kinnan, late a secretary, had turned herself into a slave. Her reasons had been two: by keeping herself occupied and tiring herself out with manual labor, she was able to keep her excitement under control, and the other reason was that Peg Woodruff was coming to dinner.

Peg loomed large in Beth's plans. Plans, incidentally, which she was keeping entirely to herself.

She got herself collected from the bed, bathed and dressed and went into the kitchen to begin getting dinner.

Andrea came in as Beth was basting a roasting chicken and took an ecstatic sniff. "Wow, Beth! We never had anything like this when you were working. How much longer does the vacation last?"

Beth practically hid her face in the oven. "I expect to be going to work soon."

Andrea picked up a carrot to nibble on. "You haven't even started looking for a job. . . . See you've done the bedroom curtains. Are we having mashed potatoes?"

"And broccoli," Beth said, as the door bell rang. "That'll be Peg."

"Oh, boy," Peg said, stretching out on the sofa after their meal. "What a change this is from my boarding house! You haven't got room for one more here, have you?"

Beth swallowed guiltily, cast a wary look in Andrea's direction, and said, "Suppose I couldn't get a job here. . . . I mean if I got a job somewhere else. . . . I mean, maybe you and Andy would live together."

Peg closed her eyes happily. "I'd do three-quarters of the work for the privilege," she announced. "Just say the word."

Andrea said, "What are you getting at, Beth? You and I not live together? Why, we . . . we're pork and beans, April and showers, Christmas and New Years. We've always been together!"

"I know," Beth said, evading a direct glance at her, "but you'll be getting married soon maybe and . . . I have to get a job and support myself and . . ."

And then the bell rang and it was a friend of Andrea's who had come in to play bridge. So Beth didn't have to answer any more questions, for which she was greatly relieved.

She had it all planned. Just the way she would do it. First there would be the news—probably by telegram the commission told her in the post office—and then she'd show it to Andrea and tell her how she wanted to do something useful and Andrea would be sure to see to it that way, and then she'd remind Andrea that Peg wanted to come and live with her, and say that they could always see each other.

And that way she would get away and Andrea would never know that it was just because she didn't want to see Jim. Maybe later when they were married—and she sometimes thought of what the judge had said to her on his deathbed about other men in other places—she wouldn't ache over Jim any more.

So the first week went by, and then the second, and Beth began to jump toward the telephone when it rang, and to be like an hour before the postman made his first call, but there was no news, and she knew she'd have to start looking for another job.

Sometimes she wondered what would happen if she took her money and went to Boston or New York and tried to live on it until she got a job. But she wouldn't think of that until she heard from Washington.

In June the poster in the post office mocked her when she went in to the Civil Service commission to see why there had been no news.

"First you get your rating, Miss Kinnan," the clerk told her. "And then when there's a job they send for you."

"But I thought they needed girls. I can't wait forever."

"Have to wait your turn. Things are moving fast some ways and slow in others down there. Know a congressman?"

Beth said she didn't and was told to sit tight, eventually she'd be sent for.

"Eventually" wouldn't be time enough. Beth began her rounds of employment offices, of department stores, everywhere except to the Archer Mills, and what kept her from that, she couldn't have told you.

The rent had to be paid the third week of her idleness and so she had to take $30 from her precious fund, and she had to take out money for car fare and lunches, and for all that Andrea protested, she insisted on paying her half of the food bill.

Then the fourth week, when Washington was so busy getting its alphabetical bureaus organized without benefit of her stenographic help, she heard there was a job as a typist at the First National bank and went there prepared to take anything she could get.

At the bank she was told to wait to see a Mr. Simmons, so she sat herself on a chair outside the rail which divided the lobby from the public privacy that is peculiar to bank officials. Mr. Simmons was talking to a tall gentleman in a white linen suit, and when he rose to leave, Beth thought the banker beckoned for her to come in.

She was a little flustered and so managed to bump squarely into the man in the white suit.

"Sorry," each murmured to the other.

Then he said, "Why, it's Miss Kinnan?"

Mr. Simmons said, "Please wait outside, miss. . . . I'll call you when I'm ready."

Beth felt herself flush, like a charity case being told to wait its turn, and when Dennis said, "So we share the same bank?" she said, "Not yet. You probably own it. I'm just here hoping to get a job."

"You're a secretary, aren't you?"

Dennis asked, leading her away from the rail.

She nodded. "I was. My employer, Judge Mayfield, died last month. I . . . I've been hoping to get something in Washington. I was told they're badly in need of secretarial help there, but I . . . I guess I have to wait for them to get around to me."

"Washington?" Dennis snapped his fingers. "You mean you want to pull up stakes and go there?"

She nodded. "I thought I'd like to get out and see something of the world besides Pennington, but I guess that was an idle . . ."

She cast an anxious look over her shoulder at Mr. Simmons, who was now dictating to a stenographer.

Then to her utter amazement, Dennis was taking her hand and leading her out of the bank.

Once outside he let her hand go and took her elbow. "If you still want to go to Washington, young lady, I believe I can do something about it. If I can catch Henry Slade at the Quinlin club."

Beth, experiencing a few of the thrills of being on a merry-go-round, asked, "Who is Henry Slade?"

"Friend of mine from Washington. His secretary's got married, and he's high and dry for help. Interested?"

"Oh, please!" she said. "Let's hurry. You don't know what it would mean to me!"

Ballet Has Risen to Fame on Broadway

By CLAYTON IRWIN

NEW YORK—Ballet dancers are rushing the traditional chorus gal right off Broadway.

Of the eight current or recent musical successes on Broadway, six include ballet routines, ranging from a single specialty number, as in "The Student Prince," to a full ballet-chorus, as in the fabulous money-maker, "Oklahoma!" and the new sell-out, "One Touch of Venus."

There's no rule that a musical show has to have a ballet, but it seems to help.

How did ballet escape from the citadels of culture to the popular theater?

Began In 1935

This calls for a flashback to 1935 when Rouben Mamoulian, an Armenian with Ideas, was named to direct the Negro folk opera, "Porgy and Bess." It gave Mamoulian a chance to test a theory, which he had summed up like this:

"Dance and drama, both being movement, were united in the early days of the theater, and should still be. Their ways parted only during later periods."

In "Porgy and Bess," Mamoulian made dance and music sustain drama instead of dividing it, as in the standard musical show.

One of Mamoulian's tricks started with a Negro sleeping on the stage, snoring in time with an off-stage measured beat of a hammer. One noise after another was added, until it built up to a full "noise symphony" of 60 people with household implements. Mamoulian had to fight to keep the idea in the show, but it turned into one of the dramatic high-spots. He used the same principle in the dances, building entire sequences around the symbolism of a single dance.

A year or so later, a couple of Grade-A ballerinas, Vera Zorina and Tamara Geva, popped up in the Broadway musicals, "I Married An Angel" and "Louisiana Purchase."

Ballet really put over a haymaker in the crop of new shows. It started with "Rosalinda," a slightly modernized version of the Strauss operetta, "Die Fledermaus," reached its peak with "Oklahoma!"—which Mamoulian directed — and continued undiminished in "The Merry Widow," "Early To Bed," and "One Touch of Venus."

Top honors for choreography in the season's ballet sweepstakes go to Agnes DeMille, a niece of Hollywood's C. B. She made her mark in ballet a few seasons back with the all-American "Rodeo," and created the dances this year for both "Oklahoma!" and "One Touch of Venus."

Audiences Analyzed

To transfer ballet to musical comedy, she first analyzed audiences, discovering that the ballet audiences would accept the slow, while musical comedy audiences demanded that "you deliver right on the nose, every minute."

There is in this season's musical shows, a great deal of fantasy; out-of-this-world stuff that meets the demand for escapism in a world at war. This is especially true in "One Touch Of Venus."

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Your Capital in Wartime:

Hope Ridings Miller, society editor and commentator for the Washington Post, has got herself a cause and it's a honey.

Hope is carrying the torch for those women secretaries of the Senators who are barred from the Senate floor. This is an ancient custom, not a rule. The rule says nothing about sex. It merely states that clerks to committees and clerks to Senators, in discharge of their duties, may walk the Senate floor.

By custom, however—a custom dating back to the days when women suffrage was considered an insufferable subject—women are barred from the Senate floor. Although the custom has been broken down to allow the petticoat Senators to take their seats, it has never been relaxed for female secretaries.

The male secretaries patter in and out without a challenge. The ladies cool their heels at the cloakroom entrances, while Senate staff messengers try to find their bosses and persuade them to leave the floor.

The ladies, Hope says, are pretty indignant about the whole thing and are planning a march on the Senate floor if something isn't done about it soon. They figure that if it ever comes to a showdown, Charles L. Watkins, parliamentarian, and Vice President Wallace, or whoever else happens to be presiding, will have to rule with them. As a matter of fact Watkins already has tipped them off in private that that would be the only possible ruling.

A check of the Senate discloses 24—or exactly one-fourth of the Senators—have No. 1 secretaries on the distaff side.

One of the better "red tape" stories going the rounds these days is on Chester Bowles, OPA chief, who really has cut a lot more than he has unwound since he came to Washington.

Fred Vinson's economic stabilization office called to ask Bowles just when he was going to issue a price freeze order on a certain product.

"It'll be up currently," said the brisk Mr. Bowles.

"You mean," asked his questioner, "currently like a rabbit or currently like a geologist?"

A lot of southwestern congressional delegations are sore as a boil on the subject of Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilizer.

Tough, two fisted hold-the-line Mr. Vinson first placed the ceiling price on cattle-on-the-hoof below what their cattlemen constituents were asking and only a few days later denied

Message from the League of Women Voters Received

Mrs. Jean S. Nisley, president of the Fayette County League of Women Voters, is reminding members of the League of the importance of the Magnuson bill repealing the Chinese immigration and naturalization laws. Concerning this a recent issue of The Ohio Women Voter states:

The fundamental issue is discrimination against the Chinese, in that they are ineligible for citizenship by naturalization, implies racial inferiority.

Did you know that: Chinese have not been allowed to enter the United States on the same quota basis as European immigrants. If they were, only about 107 would come in annually.

Professors, merchants, travelers and students must have a special certificate in addition to the regular passport to obtain an American visa. Not even the Japanese are required to do this.

Chinese must enter the U. S. through designated ports. A Chinese student entering an American college may have to detour greatly out of the way to reach his destination.

A Chinese merchant in Mexico, wishing to depart for home from San Francisco, must accept an immigration guard who escorts him to the port of embarkation. It is required that he pay the guard's round-trip expense.

Chinese seamen, with certain exceptions, have not been allowed to enter the U. S. since 1922, regardless of the nationality and flag of the vessel employing them, a contradiction of both international law and the law of the U. S.

An American citizen born here but of Chinese descent cannot go to China, marry a Chinese wife and bring her back to America.

"Many of those whom God has joined together, the immigration officials have put asunder."

A Chinese living here but not born here, cannot be naturalized but is subject to the Selective Service Act.

While in the service of this country he can apply for citizenship. This does not, however, include his father or brothers.

Passage of the Magnuson bill does not do away with racial discrimination in immigration laws, even as it applies to the Chinese, since it is race, rather than country of origin, that will determine the quota.

All persons of Chinese descent, regardless of the place of their birth, would be charged against the quota.

Nevertheless this is a step in the right direction.

ZERO HOUR OF INVASION OF EUROPE BY ALLIES IS NOW BELIEVED NEAR

The theory here is that if 40 percent of Germany's productive capacity is knocked out, she must quit.

Use of Russian bases for shuttle-bombing of Germany may be involved in the "all-out" aerial assault expected to reach a climax shortly.

The United States has a terrific stake in this test of air power. It has been made clear that American troops will make up the bulk of the invasion army, and that casualties in such a campaign would be very great.
